

waiwai 'ole

It's Hawaiian for 'useless'.

HE DOESN'T 'HOLD A HOSE', BECAUSE IT'S ALWAYS 'NOT MY JOB'. SO WHAT IS THE POINT OF SCOTT MORRISON?

He stuffed up quarantine. He stuffed up vaccines. He stuffed up aged care. Now he's stuffed up rapid antigen tests. And when the going gets tough, Scott Morrison gets going - to Hawaii.

The very least Scott Morrison must do is make rapid antigen tests (RATs) free and accessible to everyone. Right now, a single test can cost up to $20, if you're lucky enough to find a chemist that still has them. That's $100 for a family of five.

That might be small change to a Prime Minister who doesn't know the cost of a litre of milk, but it's out of reach for many families.

Too many workers are being forced to make a choice - spend money they can't really afford buying the RATs they need, or take a chance and hope they're not accidentally spreading COVID through their household or workplace.

If you want Scott Morrison to get something right for once, and make RATs free like they have in the UK and US, scan to sign this petition:
